CRISIS

ONE DOLLAR AND A HALF A YEAR

DO YOU KNOW

- that the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People sent James Weldon Johnson, its Acting Secretary, to Haiti last spring to investigate and report on conditions there under American occupation—
- that his articles in The Nation and The Crisis told for the first time of the murder, rapine and exploitation of the Haitians by Americans—
- that the shocking of the American nation and government into making an investigation which will lead to the eventual (and probably immediate) ending of the horrible regime in Haiti is directly due to the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's expose—
- that the eyes of the civilized world have been directed to the treatment of colored people in Haiti and in America by the United States government?

No one can tell what the final results will be. Certain it is that there will be immediate and far-reaching changes.

That is what

The NATIONAL ASSOCIATION for The ADVANCEMENT of COLORED PEOPLE can and will do with your support. Every new member, every new branch means greater power to fight unceasingly for a square deal for colored people in America and elsewhere.

ARE YOU A MEMBER?

HAVE YOU A BRANCH IN YOUR CITY?

DECEMBER, 1920

Whole No. 122

PONTIUS PILATE

PONTIUS PILATE, Federal Governor of Mississippi, sat in the Judgment seat at Jackson. Before him stretched a table of shining gold and the morning sun sang through the eastern windows. It lighted the faces of the Chief Priest and the Elders as they bent eagerly toward him, and twisted itching hands.

He was fingering a pile of silver money which seemed to have been tossed or thrown upon the table before him.

"This-er-Iscariot fellow," he began in a low, inquiring voice, while his eyes sought the haunting shadows of the long, crimson curtains at his back.

A bishop interrupted him: a tall and mighty bishop cassocked, ringed, and jewelled:

"Just a case of uneasy conscience—a worthless fellow—we shall give this to foreign missions, shall we not, and seek Souls for the Kingdom?" And he gathered up and counted out thirty pieces—"and now to the main matter."

"I don't see how I can pardon this Barabbas," said the Governor,—speaking with sudden vehemence. "He is a criminal and a drunkard—he has killed men before and—"

"Now, now, Governor!" interrupted the Judge, "Jack Barabbas is not so bad—quarrelsome, to be sure, when in liquor, and quick to defend his honor as every white man should be. Moreover—hark!"

Something floated in by the window. It was a low, but monstrous sound and in it lay anger and blood.

"See, Governor? Hear that? The Saturday crowds are in town and Jack is a prime favorite—you know they're none too well disposed toward you and the Government since this new usurpation of federal power."

"That's just it," answered the Governor angrily, straightening in his chair and flashing challenging glances right and left: "Lawlessness has brought Mississippi to this pass and yet you want me not only to pardon a notorious criminal, but also to condemn an innocent man."

"Innocent?" cried several voices, but the great voice of the Bishop drowned them all.

"You do not understand," he said ominously, thrusting forward his great bulk and towering over the nervous frame of the Governor. The Governor stiffened but did not quail. "You are northern born—you live far from our problem—our fearful Problem. Remember, Sir, in Mississippi there is one Crime of Crimes, one beside which all crimes fade to innocence—Murder, Arson, Rape, Theft—all are nothing beside the crime of Race Equality. Sir, this man, whom we have brought before you, not only preaches openly the equality of all men, but (and the Bishop shuddered) practices it!"

And then the flying words of all the eager, angry councilors raised and swept across the golden board and up the crimson curtains and down the open, sun-flushed windows:

"Do you know what he wants?"—"He wants equality for Everybody—everybody, mind you"—"Turks, Jews, Niggers, Dagoes, Chinks, Japs"—

"everybody"—"talking, sleeping, kissing, marrying"—"the damned scoundrel!"—"and do you know why he wants it?"—"He's nothing but a—"—"He's a Bolshevik—a Red Revolutionist"—"He is going to overthrow all government—"

And then in a shriek—"He claims to be God and King."

Slowly, Pilate arose.

"Bring him in," he said.

They swung the crimson curtains back and there in the shadows stood the Christ.

Pontius Pilate shuddered. "Art thou King?" he whispered.

And the answer came calm and clear, "Yes!"

The cry of the mob below shivered to a shriek, while the Chief Priest and the Elders stood in a silence that was ominous.

Pilate turned.

"I find no fault in this man," he said doggedly, as his hands trembled.

"He blasphemed against the White Race," hissed the Bishop.

But Pilate continued: "You have brought this man before me as a dangerous agitator. I have examined him before you and have found no fault in him. I will therefore fine him and let him go."

But the council cried in one voice, "Away with Christ—and pardon Barabbas!"

"I'll pardon Barabbas if you insist—but Christ—"

Again the groan of the mob rose and flooded in at the window, breaking the sunshine.

Pilate stirred uneasily—"I won't punish him," he said testily. "I know no law."

"Sir, we know our unwritten law. The crowd below—"

"I'll have no violence," cried Pilate. "It was just this lynching business that led the federal government to interfere in Mississippi—"

"Your Excellency, consider a moment," interrupted the States Attorney. "You incur no responsibility.

You simply deliver this man into our hands; and by your pardon of Barabbas the crowd will be mollified and—"

"And what?" asked the Governor.

"Well, there will be less likelihood of violence."

Pilate arose agitated. "I'll have nothing to do with it," he said. "I wash my hands of the whole thing."

The councilors bowed and turned to the door. The shout of the mob rose and rent the courtyard and the sunlight died:

—Lynch him! Lynch the damned!

For a moment Pilate hesitated with clenched hands and riven face. Then slowly he left the chamber.

It was late afternoon and Pilate stood in the clean, cool bathroom, washing his hands. His wife hurried in.

"Pontius," she said hesitatingly, "have nothing to do with that just man—for I have suffered—"

"There, there! It's all right," he said, chucking her under the chin. "Don't meddle in politics." They both started, for they heard the mad music of myriad feet, the laughter, screaming and cursing of men, and the shrill babble of women's voices; and then over the height of the hills rolled the far-off echo of that world-worn cry:

"My God, my God! Why has Thou forsaken me!"

THE UNREAL CAMPAIGN

DEVER have the American people endured such a Presidential campaign. It is true that in no campaign are the great issues always distinct and clear and the alignments definite and understandable. But surely in no campaign has there ever been such a lack of alignment and such deliberate smearing of issues. One may, as one is constituted, regard voting as a test of conscience and principle or as a practical make-shift. In the first, the land may easily go to the dogs while the Dreamer walks his high and isolated path. In the other case, we may too easily forget our dreams.

But both sorts of Voters on November 2, 1920, were in maddening puzzlement. The League of Nations? There was no real difference between the parties; between Johnson and Wilson there was a world of argument; but Taft and Holt, Hoover and Cox? It was all a matter of punctuation and style. No man then could vote either the Republican or the Democratic ticket because he favored or opposed the League. And outside the League, What? Imperialism, labor and wage, the power of capital, the marketing of farm products, the building of homes, the training of children, the ownership of land, the freedom of suffrage—in these and all else the major parties were mere fog or reaction. Indeed the only real, stinging, fighting questions in the whole campaign were President Wilson and the Negro.

The Family Tree

The allegation was that the President-elect had a black man somewhere among his remote ancestors. Can you conceive how real a fury this query roused? How else could it be with our deliberate cultivation of race hate and with Pat Harrison of Mississippi heading one of the Speakers' Bureaus?

Suppose President Harding is colored—What of it? He would be but one of hundreds of distinguished Americans who served their country well from the day of Alexander Hamilton to that of Lew Wallace. Nefer-tari and Amenhotep, Candace and Terence, Askia and Tamuramaro, Browning and Lafcadio Hearn—how many of the world's heroes have shared the black blood of Africa! It is an ancient and noble lineage; as high and deserving as that of any race on earth, until Ethiopia was raped and murdered and despoiled by Europe. God knows that all of us—black, white, red and yellow, are low enough in ancestry and service, but "Pure White America" excels most lands in being able to boast an ancestry which includes far more jails, asylums and gutters and far fewer palaces than most nations. Is this her shame or glory? And which was worse: the shrieking whispers of the Democrats, or the vociferous denials of the Republicans of the taint! Taint, forsooth! what could taint America?

Ohio, once the home of freedom, led in Anti-Negro propaganda, egged on by Cox and the new white southern immigration. "Timely warnings" to white folk were distributed by the hundred thousand declaring, "Ohioans should remember that the time has come when we must handle this problem in somewhat the same way as the South is handling it!" As a result many of the colored candidates for the legislature were defeated, but more were elected than ever before and many friends like Governor Davis, formerly Mayor of Cleveland, triumphed.

Third Parties

The third parties have made a singularly spiritless campaign. As residual legatees of all protest and unrest they did almost nothing to answer the searching query of desperate strivers for light. Not the ultimate dogma of Marxian socialism or the undigested hodge-podge of Farmer-Laborers sufficed. Men asked and were not answered: What is the next step and how does it lead to a definite, clearmarked way? The great mass of laboring people, the thrifty, hard-working farmers and small capitalists, lacked dismally here that leadership which through the great Labor party of England and the right wing Socialists of Italy are hewing, waveringly but stubbornly, a real path, leaving on the one side intransigent communism and on the other, organized and reactionary theft. Not so America. We, the burden-bearers, could not even agree to disagree and delivered the masses bound into the hands of the Philistines.

And the Black Man. He had no chance. He was less than free and more than a slave. He was a machine—an automatic registration mark for the Republican party. He could not be otherwise. From the day Woodrow Wilson shamelessly betrayed his black supporters of 1912 to the day when the flippant Cox of Ohio built his Ohio campaign on the cheapest brand of "nigger"-hatred, the black American had but one political choice or mission: to defeat the South-ridden Democratic party. He could not even think of taking an off-shot at the Millennium by voting Socialist or Farmer Labor—he must defeat the Democrats.

And he did his bit.

And so the great farce ends. The People have spoken—and said nothing.

THE A. M. E. CHURCH

OO little has been said of the extraordinary accomplishment of the Department of Finance of the A. M. E. Church during the last quadrennium. For the first time in the history of the church there has been collected in "dollar money" over a million dollars during a quadrennium. The Financial Secretary who accomplished this is John Russell Hawkins, of North Carolina. The "dollar money" is a sort of federal tax upon individual members for the support of the general connection and its increase since its establishment has been as follows:

1872—1876.....	$95,554	1896—1900.....	$406,074
1876—1880.....	99,925	1900—1904.....	763,411
1880—1884.....	169,389	1904—1908.....	665,494
1884—1888.....	199,514	1908—1912.....	790,088
1888—1892.....	313,341	1912—1916.....	850,214
1892—1896.....	351,942	1916—1920.....	1,053,679

Thus from 1872-1920 the church has collected $5,758,625 for general expenses, not including money raised for local purposes, salaries for presiding elders and pastors and special monies raised for mission work, church extension and in education rallies. This is a record of which any organization should be proud.

AND NOW LIBERIA

HE Wilson Plan of assisting Liberia has been finally revealed in detail. Its terms, which include a loan of five million dollars, are found to be disastrously rigid. Worley, a white Virginian, as General Receiver, is the one prominent figure and would be the real ruler of Liberia under this plan, together with his band of white pensioners. He and our Secretary of Legation, Bundy, sought to force the plan through, but President King called an extra session of the Legislature to consider amendments. While the Legislature was in session a cablegram was received from the United States, saying that no amendments to the Plan would be accepted and that the Plan must be signed as submitted by them, "or the friendly interest which has heretofore existed would become lessened."

The Liberians, however, refused to be frightened and are preparing to send another commission to America, now that the election is over, to discuss some reasonable changes in the proposed financial arrangements.

COÖPERATION

HE second annual coöperative convention met in Cincinnati, November 11-14; the "All American Farmer Labor Coöperative Commission" has been organized with headquarters in Washington, D. C., and Frederic C. Howe is executive secretary; in New York the Socialist Rand School is giving courses on coöperation and answering questions by correspondence. Thus the movement grows. Shall American Negroes lag behind!

MC SWINEY

CHE veriest coward may die for a cause in the frenzy of battle with court martial and disgrace behind him and flaming medals in front. A brave man may rush to his death at sudden call in time of peace. But the bravest of the brave is he who without hurt or hate simply lies still and for the sake of Right dies by inches through endless days. No cause with such martyrs can ever die.

MARTYRS

CHREE years ago December 11, at 7:17 in the morning, thirteen American Negro soldiers were murdered on the scaffold by the American government to satisfy the bloodlust of Texas on account of the Houston riot. This was bad enough; but in addition to this there are today languishing in the United States Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., 56 colored men sentenced to life imprisonment and 5 men sentenced to imprisonment for 15 years, all for the same alleged offence. This shameful injustice is a trumpet call to every American Negro and we should never rest until these men are pardoned and freed,—

"Lord, these are Thine who pay the price
For what a freeman's soul is worth,—
Whose madness is their sacrifice
That what they love may live on earth!
Lord these are Thine!"

THE INTERNATIONAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN

THE International Council of Women meets every five years. This year it met in Christiania, Norway, and for the first time had an accredited Negro delegate, Mrs. Mary B. Talbert of Buffalo N. Y., and her alternate, Dr. Mary F. Waring of Chicago. The race has been represented unofficially twice before,—by Miss Hallie Q. Brown who addressed the London meeting in 1899 and by Mrs. Mary Church Terrell who spoke at the Berlin meeting in 1904.

The delegates, including Mrs. Talbert and her daughter and Dr. Waring, traveled in a party via Italy, Switzerland, France, Belgium, Denmark, Norway and Scotland. There were five southern-born white women in the party: Mrs. Alexander Watkins of Minter City, Miss.; Mrs. James Riley of Charlotte, N. C., former vice-president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. O. J. Chandler of Harrodsburg, Ky.; Mrs. Heisey of Great Falls, Mont.; and Mrs. Marsh of Wyoming. These women together with Mrs. Howard Gould during the whole 78 days of the journey made the life of the colored delegates as uncomfortable as possible. Mrs. Gould began the campaign on shipboard by repeating in a loud voice various tales of the systematic importation of southern colored women into the North for voting purposes. Repeated efforts were made to segregate the colored women in Italy and Switzerland. At the American Y. W. C. A. in Paris, where the party arrived late in the morning after an all night ride, all the white delegates were welcomed and accommodated while the colored delegates were even refused breakfast. At Antwerp, Mrs. Riley went to the proprietor of the hotel and demanded segregation of the colored guests, which he refused. Mrs. Watkins left the party at Brussels to avoid further contact.

In Birmingham, England, at the Queen's Hotel, Mrs. Heisey and Mrs. Riley refused seats at the table where Mrs. Talbert and her daughter were sitting and left the dining-room. At Copenhagen, Denmark, they were entertained at the American Consul. Mrs. Gould, Mrs. Chandler and Mrs. Marsh, of Wyoming, refused to attend because the colored women were there.

At the meeting of the council the colored women received every courtesy from the foreign delegates and from the American officials, Mrs. Phillip North Moore and Mrs. Joseph C. Merriman. During this time Mrs. Talbert published four articles on our race problem in two leading Christiania papers.

On the return there were several social functions of such importance that the Southerners were compelled to endure in silence the presence of the colored delegates. For instance, all the delegates were entertained by the King and Queen of Norway. All the Southerners were present. Lady Aberdeen, president of the Council, entertained the delegates and alternates at breakfast. Mrs. Riley was placed opposite Dr. Waring and did not leave the table. At Hadow House, Aberdeen, Scotland, on the way back, Lady Aberdeen entertained the whole American party. At her request Mrs. Talbert sat at her right and the representative of the Jewish women, Mrs. Nathan Harris, at her left. All the Southerners were present. Mrs. Riley sat at the right of Lord Aberdeen and Mrs. Merriman, conductor of the party, on the left. They were entertained at Edinburgh, Scotland, by the Common Council. All were present.

And so the eventful journey ended with the colored women quietly and with dignity standing at their guns and the southern white women furious at the "social equality!"

MARCUS GARVEY

W. E. B. DU BOIS

MARCUS GARVEY was born at St. Ann's Bay, Jamaica, about 1885. He was educated at the public school and then for a short time attended the Church of England Grammar School, although he was a Roman Catholic by religion. On leaving school he learned the printing trade and followed it for many years. In Costa Rica he was associated with Marclam Taylor in publishing the Bluefield's Messenger. Later he was on the staff of La Nacion. He then returned to Jamaica and worked as a printer, being foreman of the printing department of P. Benjamin's Manufacturing Company of Kingston. Later he visited Europe and spent some time in England and France and while abroad conceived his scheme of organizing the Negro Improvement Society. This society was launched August 1, 1914, in Jamaica, with these general objects among others:

"To establish a Universal Confraternity among the race"; "to promote the spirit of race pride and love"; "to administer to and assist the needy"; "to strengthen the imperialism of independent African States"; "to conduct a world-wide commercial and industrial intercourse".

His first practical object was to be the establishment of a farm school. Meetings were held and the Roman Catholic Bishop, the Mayor of Kingston, and many others addressed them. Nevertheless the project did not succeed and Mr. Garvey was soon in financial difficulties. He therefore practically abandoned the Jamaica field and came to the United States. In the United States his movement for many years languished until at last with the increased migration from the West Indies during the war he succeeded in establishing a strong nucleus in the Harlem district of New York City.

His program now enlarged and changed somewhat in emphasis. He began especially to emphasize the commercial development of the Negroes and as an islander familiar with the necessities of ship traffic he planned the "Black Star Line". The public for a long time regarded this as simply a scheme of exploitation, when they were startled by hearing that Garvey had bought a ship. This boat was a former coasting vessel, 32 years old, but it was put into commission with a black crew and a black captain and was announced as the first of a fleet of vessels which would trade between the colored peoples of America, the West Indies and Africa. With this beginning, the popularity and reputation of Mr. Garvey and his association increased quickly.

In addition to the Yarmouth he is said to have purchased two small boats, the Shady-side, a small excursion steamer which made daily excursions up the Hudson, and a yacht which was designed to cruise among the West Indies and collect cargo in some central spot for the Yarmouth. He had first announced the Black Star Line as a Five Million Dollar corporation, but in February, 1920, he announced that it was going to be a Ten Million Dollar corporation with shares selling at Five Dollars. To this he added in a few months the Negro Factories Corporation capitalized at One Million Dollars with two hundred thousand one dollar shares, and finally he announced the subscription of Five Million Dollars to free Liberia and Haiti from debt.

Early in 1920 he called a convention of Negroes to meet in New York City from the 1st to the 31st of August, "to outline a constructive plan and program for the uplifting of the Negroes and the redemption of Africa". He also took title to three apartment houses to be used as offices and purchased the foundation of an unfinished Baptist church which he covered over and used for meetings, calling it "Liberty Hall". In August, 1920, his convention met with representatives from various parts of the United States, several of the West India Islands and the Canal Zone and a few from Africa. The convention carried out its plan of a month's meetings and culminated with a mass meeting which filled Madison Square Garden. Finally the convention adopted a "Declaration of Independence" with 66 articles, a universal anthem and colors,—red, black and green—and elected Mr. Garvey as "His Excellency, the Provisional President of Africa", together with a number of various other leaders from the various parts of the Negro world. This in brief is the history of the Garvey movement.

The question comes (1) Is it an honest, sincere movement? (2) Are its industrial and commercial projects business like and effective? (3) Are its general objects plausible and capable of being carried out?

The central and dynamic force of the movement is Garvey. He has with singular success capitalized and made vocal the great and long suffering grievances and spirit of protest among the West Indian peasantry. Hitherto the black peasantry of the West Indies has been almost leaderless. Its natural leaders, both mulatto and black, have crossed the color line and practically obliterated social distinction, and to some extent economic distinction, between them and the white English world on the Islands. This has left a peasantry with only the rudiments of education and with almost no economic chances, grovelling at the bottom. Their distress and needs gave Garvey his vision.

It is a little difficult to characterize the man Garvey. He has been charged with dishonesty and graft, but he seems to me essentially an honest and sincere man with a tremendous vision, great dynamic force, stubborn determination and unselfish desire to serve; but also he has very serious defects of temperament and training: he is dictatorial, domineering, inordinately vain and very suspicious. He cannot get on with his fellow-workers. His entourage has continually changed.¹ He has had endless law suits and some cases of fistcuffs with his subordinates and has even divorced the young wife whom he married with great fanfare of trumpets about a year ago. All these things militate against him and his reputation. Nevertheless I have not found the slightest proof that his objects were not sincere or that he was consciously diverting money to his own uses. The great difficulty with him is that he has absolutely no business sense, no flair for real organization and his general objects are so shot through with bombast and exaggeration that it is difficult to pin them down for careful examination.

On the other hand, Garvey is an extraordinary leader of men. Thousands of people believe in him. He is able to stir them with singular eloquence and the general run of his thought is of a high plane. He has become to thousands of people a sort of religion. He allows and encourages all sorts of personal adulation, even printing in his paper the addresses of some of the delegates who hailed him as "His Majesty". He dons on state occasion, a costume consisting of an academic cap and gown flounced in red and green!

Of Garvey's curious credulity and suspicious one example will suffice: In March, 1919, he held a large mass meeting at Palace Casino which was presided over by Chandler Owen and addressed by himself and Phillip Randolph. Here he collected $204 in contributions on the plea that while in France, W. E. B. DuBois had interfered with the work of his "High Commissioner" by "defeating" his articles in the French press and "repudiating" his statements as to lynching and injustice in America! The truth was that Mr. DuBois never saw or heard of his "High Commissioner", never denied his nor anyone's statements of the wretched American conditions, did everything possible to arouse rather than quiet the French press and would have been delighted to welcome and co-operate with any colored fellow-worker.

¹ Of the 15 names of his fellow officers in 1914 not a single one appears in 1918; of the 18 names of officers published in 1918 only 6 survive in 1919; among the small list of principal officers published in 1920 I do not find a single name mentioned in 1919.

THE HOUSING CRISIS IN NEW YORK CITY

VICTOR R. DALY

MUCH has been said of late concerning the acute shortage of dwelling houses in New York City. A great deal of time and space has been devoted to elaborating on the resultant suffering and privation that always follow in the wake of a shortage of any commodity. The Metropolitan press, welfare organizations, housing commissions, reconstruction committees and scores of like agencies, however, have been so taken up with the problems of white people that very little time has been found to devote to housing relief among Negroes. As is usually the case, then, unless the Negro himself takes the initiative and attempts to work out his own salvation by bringing his case to the direct attention of those who are in position to help him, he will find himself suffering from housing troubles long after the ills of others have been cured.

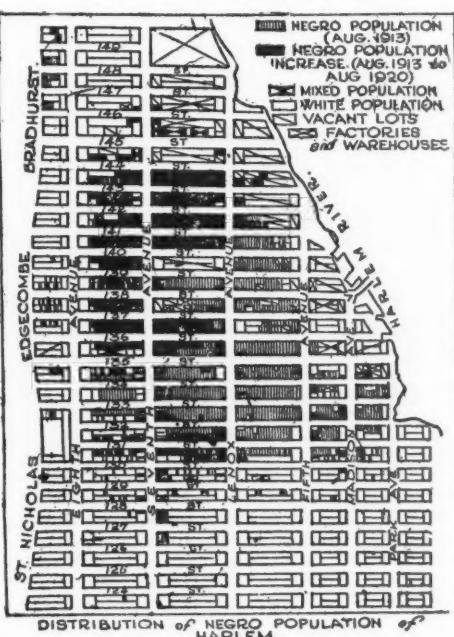

In a recent survey of the housing conditions in the Negro section of Harlem, the New York Urban League has disclosed some facts that have provoked a great deal of attention to the question of Negro housing in the city. This survey shows that a housing situation exists in upper Harlem which is menace not only to the lives and health of the people who reside in that particular section, but to the entire city of New York. The harder this fact can be driven home to the "powers that be," the quicker will be the relief extended to this community.

The simple fact that the Negro cannot live anywhere that he may desire, by virtue of the policy of segregation, places his housing problem in a class by itself. As a result of segregation, there is an artificial restriction of the already too limited supply of dwelling houses. This accounts for the fact that Negroes are paying comparatively higher rents than other racial groups in New York City. The present average monthly rentals for the most modern apartments is about $12.50 per room. Even in the oldest cold-water flats in the most congested parts of Harlem the rentals average $9.50 per room.

The population of Harlem has increased approximately from 55,000 in 1913 to 150,000 today. During this time the actual housing facilities, although they have extended greatly, have by no means kept pace with the tremendous growth of the population, especially during the period following the war. So great is the congestion that 5,000 new-law apartment houses could be utilized tomorrow if they were available.

A few specific cases will serve to show to what extent consideration of health and sanitation has been discarded in the mad search after shelter. In one instance we found a family of five, including three children, 5, 3 and 2 years old, occupying one room of a five-room flat in which there were altogether 16 people living. On an average, there are 14 families living in every 8 family apartment house, and 17 families occupying 10 family houses. In one extreme case we found 33 families occupying a 16 family house.

With conditions like these it is no wonder that such trivial questions as health, sanitation and morals have long since been thrown to the winds. We found that the infant mortality among Negro babies is three times that of any other section of the city. As we expected, the spread of contagious diseases has steadily increased; 16 per cent of Negro deaths in 1914 were from tuberculosis, while in 1919 tuberculosis accounted for 22 per cent of Negro deaths. Every week 13 Negroes die in New York City of tuberculosis.

It is claimed that the solution of the general housing problem in New York City lies in the building of new houses. "Stimulate building!" is the cry of the hour. As far as Harlem is concerned this program offers small chance of direct relief unless municipal housing is adopted. Present day costs of building and construction, coupled with the scarcity of credit and mortgages, prevent Negroes themselves from erecting dwelling houses for their own use. Unfortunately, white investors have become imbued with the erroneous idea that apartment house construction for Negroes is an unprofitable business. Consequently the hope of relief by the method of new building by private capital is out of the question. For a generation Negroes have been living on the left-over housing of white tenants who have moved into other districts. If any immediate help is to come to Harlem it will have to be in this same manner.

When houses can be secured for the white families now living on the outskirts of the colored section, these families will move away. The landlord, confronted with the problem of keeping his apartments occupied, will be glad to welcome colored tenancy.

Within the past 18 months Negroes have been investing heavily in real property in Harlem. Scores of apartment houses occupied by white families have been purchased by colored investors who have been replacing the white tenants by colored people. The courts have generally assisted these new landlords. Of recent months such procedure has been absolutely the only relief to the overcrowded colored section. Now even this is stopped. The recent anti-landlord legislation just passed by the Legislature of the State will react, unconsciously, to the detriment of the colored people. At present everybody is rejoicing over the fact that the new law makes it impossible for the landlord to dispossess a tenant except for one of the three following reasons: (1) actual non-payment of rent, (2) personal use of the premises for the landlord, (3) demolition of the building. Under these restrictions, how could a colored investor be able to get white families out of a house that he desires to use for colored tenants?

Only by the personal volition of the white tenants themselves. This is not likely. Consequently there is scant hope for any immediate relief of the housing congestion in Harlem. The intent of the law was good, doubtless, but for the Negro, it closed the only open door of relief.

'THREE BOOKS

The Negro Faces America. By Herbert J. Seligmann. Harper and Brothers, New York.

Rachel. By Angelina W. Grimké. The Cornhill Company, Boston.

Children of the Mist. By George Madden Martin. D. Appleton and Company, New York.

"A FIRST step in an attempt upon the race, distrusts and preconceptions clustered about race is to separate and examine them. There is, in fact, no race problem in the United States. There are a thousand problems with which race is more or less connected, frequently deliberately connected for an ulterior motive, in the absence of organic connection between race distinctions and the subject at issue."

With this statement as his thesis Mr. Seligmann proceeds to point the connection between economic considerations and race relations which has prevailed in this country ever since the Civil War. Just before the Chicago race riot, for instance, a clash arose between the interests of two real estate factions rather than between the two races. In the actual riot, the causes lay (1) in the entrance of migrating southern Negroes into white residential districts; (2) in hostility between union whites and non-union Negroes in the stockyards; (3) in political enmity engendered by the fact that a certain city administration won its election through the Negro vote. A careful survey of conditions in other cities where riots occurred shows the same type of causes.

Mr. Seligmann points out that liberty and life have to be fought for almost daily by every Negro,—“the patience and determination and courage which go into the struggle are values that no nation can afford to spurn.” Miss Sarah N. Cleghorn has said something like this last, but Mr. Seligmann is alone, I believe, in defining the white Southerner’s penchant for colored woman. He works it out on a Freudian basis which assumes “that the choice of the mate is influenced by the characters impressed upon the infant male as belonging to his mother.” Many Southerners receive their first impressions from their colored nurses. The inference is obvious. We find here too an idea since carried out by Professor R. T. Kerlin—“A white American desirous of a critical insight into the society in which he flatters himself he lives could not do better than read carefully a number of race-conscious newspapers published for and by Negroes of the United States.”

There are many valuable suggestions for intensive study on the part of the white student of race issues. Thus the author finds what all Negroes know, that the South was the real victor in the Civil War, that the vote became a class distinction only when the Negro became a candidate for it, that no real scientific data can be deduced from the measurement of the intelligence of Negro and white school children until racial characters can be isolated from the effect of social environment and that colored Americans have at last learned the necessity for organization and self-defense. Altogether The Negro Faces America is a book showing thought and research and calling for still more thought and research.

RACHEL is a play as terrible, as searching and as strong as anything produced by the continental European dramatists,—including the Scandinavian. Indeed one must think of Ibsen, for the action progresses from one depth of sad dreariness to another. As a bit of writing, Miss Grimké has as usual turned out a fine piece of work; as a bit of propaganda it leaves something to be desired. Undoubtedly a better effect would be gained by having the humiliation of the colored children acted rather than related. One lesson the play certainly teaches: Rachel, her mother and Tom have all let their troubles make them morbid, whereas John Strong is quite normal. Shall we not learn to look on color “as a state of mind” as Miss Ovington’s Hertha puts it, —something mutable and transitory?

EIGHT stories written simply and sympathetically by George Madden Martin give a new concept of the Children of the Mist who live in Mississippi, Louisiana, Florida, the rice fields of the Carolinas and the backwoods of Kentucky. These are people emerging from the fogs of slavery and gazing through a glass darkly on a freedom promised, but as “yet denied”. Mrs. Martin has let the characters in the main speak for themselves so the reader must be touched and thrilled and saddened according to his own dictates. “The Sleeping Sickness” is the best story of the group, though almost all are good. But in this one Mrs. Martin aside from using a plot unique and yet inevitable, lets fall one or two gems “It ain’t de law foh my boy I’m afraid uv, Mr. Tom,” Angey explained to the white man. “En’ it ain’t de thought uv de law what is makin’ de boy look ez yo’ kin see he duz. It’s de fear uv de lack uv de law wi’ both uv us.” And later Angey, splendid soul, says to the white woman whose son she might have saved, “Lemme learn yo’ some’n’, Miss Janie. Wu’ foh de goodwill uv de colored folks in case de time come w’en yo’ gwine ter need it; it ain’t no harder wu’ dan wu’kin’ for dere ill-will.”

Mrs. Martin shows an almost uncanny realization of the distrust and its ramifications which colored people are inevitably bound to have of their white neighbors. Thus the inimitable Angey makes no complaint of having vainly trusted her grandson to the sheriff. But she remarks: “When yo’ gits yo’ hand in a lion’s mouth, pat him en rub him till yo’ git it out, but don’t yo’ put it in any mo. . . . Puttin’ it anudder way, I might say that a mouse ought to be a fus’-rate han’ to keep away f’om cat-tracks.”

FUNDS NEEDED TO FIGHT ARKANSAS CASES

ALL readers of THE CRISIS and members of the Association know of the long, difficult and as yet undecided fight that the Association is making to save the lives of 12 Negroes sentenced to death in Arkansas and the freedom of 67 men sentenced to long prison terms for the alleged "massacre" in Phillips County, Ark., in October, 1919.

As announced in the November issue of the Branch Bulletin, Colonel George W. Murphy, who has been serving as chief counsel of the Association in the defense of 79 men and who was most vigilant and determined in his efforts to save the lives of these men, died on October 11. The cases of the 12 men sentenced to death, were first appealed to the Phillips County Circuit Court, where motions for new trials were denied. They were then appealed to the Supreme Court of the State of Arkansas where the verdict of the Phillips County Circuit Court in six of the cases was reversed and the cases remanded for new trial and in the six remaining cases the verdict of death was affirmed. The first six cases on being re-tried, were re-sentenced to death by the Phillips County Court. In the meantime in the latter six cases a motion was filed in the Federal Court of the Eastern District of Arkansas for trial there on a writ of certiorari.

Similar action was taken in the remaining six cases upon the men being re-sentenced to death. On October 11 the Supreme Court of the United States refused a motion to carry the cases directly from the Arkansas State Supreme Court to the United States Supreme Court, an effort made by Colonel Murphy to carry the cases immediately to the highest tribunal of the country. This decision was rendered on the same day that Colonel Murphy died. The cases will now have to be fought in the Federal Courts in Arkansas and if the Association should meet defeat there the cases will then go to the Court of Appeals of the Federal Courts. If there an unfavorable verdict is rendered then the cases will go to the United States Supreme Court.

Immediately following the trouble in Arkansas, the Association had little difficulty in raising funds. To date it has expended over $6,000 in the defense. It is obligated at present to pay within a few weeks an additional $5,000. That sum must be raised within a short time if the lives of the men in Arkansas are to be saved. The Association is therefore making an appeal to every person who wishes to see justice done in the cases of these men to contribute immediately in as large measure as possible to the Defense Fund. It makes this appeal to all persons whether they contributed to the original fund or not. Action must be taken

HAITIAN ARTICLES IN PAMPHLET FORM

THE four articles by James Weldon Johnson which appeared in The Nation, together with official documents secured by Mr. Johnson in Haiti last spring, and which have caused so great an upheaval in the United States during the past three months, have been combined and published in pamphlet form. The price is twenty-five cents a copy, which can be obtained by writing to the National Office. There is only a limited supply on hand. Persons desiring copies should write at once for them. The investigation and the report thereon form one of the most damning indictments of imperialism ever published and should be included in the library of every person who wishes to read and keep a record of what has been done in the Negro republic of Haiti by the United States government and the National City Bank of New York.

immediately as the Association is dependent upon its friends and supporters to aid it in this critical period. The men are guilty of no crime save that of protesting in a legal and legitimate fashion against vicious economic exploitation. The fight must be made to prevent their being legally lynched.

VICTORY IN ROBERT L. HILL CASE

ROBERT L. HILL, the alleged leader of the "massacre" in Phillips County, Ark., in 1919, has been entirely absolved of all blame by the Attorney-General of the United States and both Federal charges against him dismissed. Thus victoriously ends one of the most dramatic legal battles in the United States since pre-Civil War days, when fugitive slaves sought asylum in northern states from oppressions in the South. The Federal Government has gone on record as recognizing that a Negro accused of a crime against a white man in a southern state cannot receive a fair and unbiased trial.

A brief history of the rapidly developing chain of events in this case will be of interest. On January 22 Mr. Hill was arrested in Topeka, Kansas, and Governor Brough asked for his extradition. The N. A. A. C. P. immediately asked Senator Arthur Capper, a member of our National Board of Directors who was familiar with the facts in the case, to wire Governor Allen of Kansas, asking him not to grant the extradition of Hill until the Association was able to present the facts. Senator Capper also wired to Hugh T. Fisher, County Attorney of Shawnee County, Kansas, asking him to act as chief counsel for Hill. Through Senator Capper's aid Governor Allen and Mr. Fisher acted promptly. Had this not been done, there would have been but slight chance of Hill escaping a return to Arkansas and possible lynching. Thus the aid of two white members of the Association meant the saving of the life of a colored man.

On January 27 the hearing on the extradition proceedings was held before Governor Allen. In spite of the protest of Attorney-General Arbuckle, a continuance was granted to permit the securing of sworn testimony showing that Hill was not the leader of the insurrection.

Finally, on March 23, after several hearings and the presentation of much evidence, Governor Allen decided, first, that Hill was not guilty of the crime charged and, second, that if Hill was returned to Arkansas his life would not be safe. He thereupon refused extradition.

The State of Arkansas then attempted to secure Hill's extradition through the State Courts of Kansas. Upon this proving unavailing they attempted to use the Federal Courts. The first charge against Hill was that he had "impersonated a Federal officer." Finding that they would not be able to substantiate such a charge, the Arkansas authorities shifted ground to a new charge of "conspiring with one V. E. Powell to impersonate a Federal officer." Judge Pollock of the Federal Court of Kansas set April 8 for a hearing on the Federal indictment. In the meantime, Walter F. White, of the National Office, was sent to Washington, where he held a conference with Assistant Attorney-General William C. Herron and presented evidence to show, first, that the State of Arkansas was attempting to use the Federal Courts solely to get Hill back within the jurisdiction of the State Courts and, second, that since Mr. U. S. Bratton, a white attorney of Little Rock, who had prosecuted a number of white planters for robbing Negro share croppers, had been driven from the state under threats of death it was doubly dangerous for Hill, a colored man, to be carried back to that state. As a result of this interview the Federal Attorney at Washington ordered the United States Attorney at Little Rock to forward to Washington all evidence in the Hill case for examination.

Later, upon the hearing held before Judge Pollock, a provisional extradition was granted to the State of Arkansas providing that Hill should be carried back to Arkansas to be tried upon the Federal charge in the Federal Courts, and that if Hill was convicted upon the Federal charge, that he was to be returned safely by the Arkansas authorities to the Federal Court in Kansas. The Arkansas authorities refused to accept such extradition papers and Judge Pollock released Hill under a $2,000 bond for a hearing at the October term of Court at Leavenworth, Kansas.

On October 2 Mr. White was again sent to Washington for a conference with the Department of Justice. The Department had given the United States Attorney at Little Rock the opportunity of saving his face by allowing him to voluntarily dismiss the two charges against Hill. This he refused to do, whereupon the Attorney-General ordered both cases in the Federal Court against Hill to be dismissed.

Thus ends one of the most dramatic legal fights the Association has ever undertaken and one which is undoubtedly to have a most far-reaching effect. Special credit is due Mr. Fisher, who, in spite of a very large law practice and his official duties as County Attorney, fought unceasingly for Mr. Hill's release and who refused not only to accept a fee, but would not even allow the National Office to reimburse him for personal expenditures made in connection with the case.

Much credit is also due Messrs. James H. Guy, Elisha Scott and A. M. Thomas, colored attorneys of Topeka, who loyally supported and aided Mr. Fisher.

DELINQUENT BRANCHES

JIM-CROWISM, disfranchisement, segregation and lynching are still with us. We must continue the fight against the color line. We need the moral support of every colored citizen, but we cannot pay the lawyers' bills or the expense of a Haitian investigation with moral support. It takes money as well as enthusiasm to do anything worth while.

To meet our various expenses we are depending upon the branches. Since the fundamental purpose of the Association is the "Advancement of Colored People," colored people ought to support it to the best of their ability. Some branches are doing their full share, others are doing less, and still others are doing nothing. Simply to keep a branch on record costs the Association annually $9.30. The National Office apportioned among the various branches, according to the colored population of the community, the amount necessary to insure the carrying out of the program for 1920. This was published in THE CRISIS for August. We are quite confident that these amounts were not impossible sums if the officers and the executive committees took their work and the responsibility connected with it seriously. It may be that some of them are much too busy to give adequate time to the Association. If so, it is only fair to the branches that they yield their places to others.

The National Office does not want to drop any branches but it does not feel that it can carry for another year those branches which are doing no active work and giving no financial support.

Below is a list of those branches from whom no word has been received since January 1, 1920. This list is published in order to give the officers and members of these branches an opportunity to revive them and to prevent the revocation of their charters. Charters of delinquent branches will be revoked at the January meeting of the Board of Directors unless some report is received from them prior to that date. If the officers of these branches will take no action, we are inviting the members to write to the National Office if they wish to keep their branch alive.

COLORED REFUGEES AFTER A SOUTHERN FIRE

ANNUAL MEETING

THE Annual Meeting of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will be held in the East Room of the Sage Foundation, 130 East Twenty-second Street, New York City, on the afternoon of Monday, January 3, at two o'clock. There will be reports from officers and branches and the nominations for Directors will be voted upon.

NOMINATING COMMITTEE

THE Nominating Committee for members of the Board of Directors of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People reports these nominees for terms expiring December 31, 1923:

Dr. J. Max Barber, Philadelphia.

Prof. George W. Cook, Washington, D. C.

Mr. Harry E. Davis, Cleveland.

Mr. A. H. Grimké, Washington, D. C.

Rev. John Haynes Holmes, New York.

Dr. V. Morton Jones, New York.

Mr. John E. Milholland, New York.

Mr. J. E. Spingarn, New York.

Mr. Moorfield Storey, Boston.

Mr. William English Walling, New York.

The Nominating Committee:

HARRY H. PACE, Chairman.

ROBERT R. CHURCH,

CHARLES H. STUDIN.

THE NEW SECRETARY

At the December meeting of the Board of Directors, James Weldon Johnson, Acting Secretary of the N. A. A. C. P., was elected Secretary.

Mr. Johnson was born in Jacksonville, Fla., in 1871. He was educated at Atlanta and Columbia Universities, and has acted as United States Consul in Venezuela and Nicaragua. He joined the National Association as Field Secretary in 1917. He is a well-known author and poet.

LITERATURE

THE time draws near the birth of Christ;
The moon is hid, the night is still:
A single church below the hill
Is pealing, folded in the mist.

Ring out false pride in place and blood,
The civic slander and the spite;
Ring in the love of truth and right,
Ring in the common love of good.

John H. Harris writes us concerning his forthcoming book, Africa—Slave or Free?

This is now about to be published in the United States by Messrs. Dutton. I prepared this little book with the single object of giving a bird's-eye view of Africa and the African today — economically, politically, ethically, religiously. The book has been warmly received here [London], and is being widely adopted by students and organizations, as a text-book, and I can safely say that no one can peruse this book without having at their fingers' ends the A B C of the African situation. I know there is no such book on the market anywhere.

The New York Call says:

Darkwater, W. E. B. DuBois' intense and moving study of the position of the darker races in the modern world, is soon to appear in a French translation. The publishers, Harcourt, Brace & Howe, announce that a third printing of the book has been found necessary here.

* * *

An Englishman, Captain W. D. Downes, M. C., has written With the Nigerians in German East Africa. (Methuen, London.) The Spectator says:

Captain Downes writes throughout as one who felt it an honor to go through this campaign with the W. A. F. F., as one "who suffered and laughed, fought and trekked, worked and rested, starved and fed with this gallant band of black volunteers from Nigeria, for it must be remembered that every Nigerian soldier that went to German East Africa volunteered his services for that campaign. I am sure that if those pioneers of Nigeria, Glover and Freeman, could have seen the regiment, of which they were the founders, at Mahiwa, they would have seen something of which they would have been justly proud. . . . I hope that when my readers have read this account, poorly told as it is by an amateur writer, they will in future respect the fighting black man of Africa, for he has at least proved himself a man. We in England owe our Negro brother-subject a great debt of gratitude for all he has done for our beloved Empire. Many a native of Nigeria has trekked his last trek and fought his last fight far away from his own land for the sake of that Empire which has given him freedom, justice and all that makes life worth living. Ruskin once said that war was an injustice of the ignoblest kind at once to God and Man, which must be stemmed for the sake of them both. This story has been written for the express purpose of letting the outside world know how nobly the West African soldier has helped to stem this tide of injustice to civilization."

The narrative abounds in acts of heroism performed by Nigerian soldiers, in remaining with wounded officers under heavy fire or shielding them with their own bodies. Of Sergeant-Major Belo Akure, the hero of a dozen fights, Captain Downes says:

"I can honestly state I have never seen a braver man. His one idea is that his officers must on no account run into unnecessary danger; on no account will he let an officer go in front of him on a road. Any cover that is handy must be reserved to conceal the officers, even if he himself must lie down in the open. I have seen him deliberately get in front of a European so that if any one should be hit it would be himself."

THE CRISIS

and B. G. Tilak. In spirit and method these two Indian leaders represent opposite types—the one a distinguished statesman and orator, the other having neither eloquence nor instinct for public affairs, but wielding great influence through his two newspapers published at Poona, the Mahratta, in English, and the Kesari, in Mahrati. Tilak's stormy career has just come to an end, to the great grief of nationalist India. He had extraordinary personal gifts and the power of inspiring fanatical devotion, and for forty years he has been at the head of the nationalist movement. In India his name is one with which to work magic or terror. He was either adored or passionately opposed.

Bal Gangadar Tilak was sixty-five years of age when he died. He was a Mahratta by race, a Brahman by caste, a lawyer by profession, and a journalist by choice. When yet a young man, he was prosecuted by the government for defaming a native ruler, the Diwan of Kolhapur, whom he accused of cruelty. He served his sentence of a hundred days in prison, and came out resolved to free his country from bureaucracy. The nationalist movement that he started in the early eighties at Poona was the foundation of the Young India party, which swept the whole peninsula. Year after year found him in difficulties with the government. Finally, in 1907, the extremists, of whom he was the leader, broke up the National Congress at Surat, bombs were hurled in Bombay, and Tilak was again arrested.

His long-drawn out trial before a Parsee judge and jury was a sensation. Tilak conducted his own defense, and his address to the court lasted six days. He was convicted and sentenced to six years' imprisonment in the fortress at Mandalay, from which he was released only a few weeks before the outbreak of the great war. Visitors to London last year, during the debates on the bill which has made radical changes in the government of India, might have seen him, a conspicuous figure wearing the magenta turban of his race, at every session of the House of Commons and in the committee-room of the House of Lords, where he appeared as a delegate of the National Congress of India.

Sanskrit students who knew Bal Gangadar Tilak hold that, if his life had not been devoted to politics, he would have been in the front rank of orientalists. He is the author of a curious, widely discussed book, "The Arctic Home of the Vedas," written during his prison terms, and designed to prove by astronomical and other evidence that the great Aryan migration began from a region within the Arctic circle.

The third Indian is a physiologist:

An Indian scientist, Professor Jagadis C. Bose, is one of the most talked-of physiologists of Europe. Nearly twenty years ago he read a paper in London, before the Royal Society, showing that tin could be tired and iron could suffer from an affection corresponding to tetanus in human beings. When he went on to assert that plants could give response to electric impulse, members of the society declared that electric response as described in the paper was absolutely impossible. Bose took up the challenge, and within a year had proved his point to the satisfaction of the Royal Society itself.

Bose's great success in this line of research is the result of his marvelous skill in the construction of micro-apparatus for detecting the smallest movements in plants. Several years ago he perfected a mechanism that magnified one hundred thousand times, enabling him to record growth at the rate of a hundred-thousandth part of an inch per second. "Man is never satisfied," said Bose, and now he has succeeded in constructing an apparatus that magnifies a million times. To realize what this means, the professor points out that if the snail's pace could be so magnified, it would race forty times around the earth in twenty-four hours. In this apparatus the slightest movement upsets a very delicately balanced magnetic system, with a mirror deflecting a ray of light to the extremity of an arc of any desired magnitude.

EDUCATION IN SOUTH CAROLINA

IN Greenville, S. C., one Dave Traxler urges the citizens not to refuse Federal educational aid (as provided for under the Smith-Hughes law) in the fear that Uncle Sam will insist on the attendance of white and black at the same schools, or the employment of Negro teachers, for white pupils. He has proof positive not only that such will not be the case, but that colored citizens will not even secure their share of such an appropriation. Take, for instance, this interesting letter appearing in the Greenville Piedmont:

LAURENS, S. C.

Hon. D. B. Traxler, Greenville, S. C.:

Dear Sir—

I shall gladly give you the facts referred to in your inquiry some days ago. I shall itemize these facts separately:

Total expenditures for white school	$143,482.70
Total expenditures for Negro school	14,057.00
Total number white teachers ..	171
Total number Negro teachers ..	80
Total number of white schools.	71
Total number of Negro schools.	74
Total white enrollment	5,907
Total Negro enrollment	6,180

The teaching of Vocational Agriculture under the Smith-Hughes Law has been satisfactory at Gray Court and at Laurens in this county.

Under this law the Federal Government pays one-half of the salary; the State one-fourth and the local community the other. In the plan here at Laurens the communities of Prospect, Copeland, Trinity Ridge and Laurens received the full time of a teacher and a community worker for the sum of $440.00. The same was the case at Gray Court-Owings where the service of a full-time teacher was received for one-fourth of his salary, the national government and state government paying the other three-fourths.

Very truly,

R. T. WILSON.

Superintendent of Education, Laurens County, South Carolina.

Another letter reads:

GREENVILLE, S. C., August 16, 1920.

Mr. D. B. Traxler, Greenville, S. C.:

My Dear Sir—

Under the terms of the Smith-Hughes act, passed by Congress in 1917, there has been spent in Greenville county during the last school year, ending July 1, 1920, the sum of $3,265.00, which amount was appropriated by the Federal government for the teaching of agriculture and other subjects in the several schools so aided. None of the money so contributed was used for the teaching of Negroes or was used to hire Negro teachers, and the spending of the funds so appropriated was left absolutely in the hands of the State authorities.

With kind regards and good wishes, I am,

Yours very truly,

M. C. BARTON,

Superintendent of Education, County of Greenville, S. C.

CREOLES

MAUD CUNY HARE writes in the Musical Observer:

The history of the Creole folk-song of America is interwoven with the history of the southwest section of the country and particularly that of the State of Louisiana.

In August, 1779, in the war of American Independence, a little army of 1,430 men composed of Creoles, two companies of which were free men of color, and 160 Indians, marched under Galvez to defend themselves against the British. For 16 years Louisiana, which had been founded by French immigrants under Iberville, had been a Spanish possession—a gift of King Louis XV to his Spanish cousin, Charles III of Spain.

In 1791, Negroes of Santo Domingo rose in rebellion and a few refugees found their way to Louisiana. Skilled in sugar-making, they revived this prosperous industry which had long remained dormant, although sugar-cane had been introduced 40 years previous by the Jesuits of St. Domingo.

Eight years later (a period to which the folk-songs often refer), Napoleon's soldiers threatened the West Indies. A large number of whites and mulatto refugees with their slaves had escaped in the St. Domingan insurrection and fled to Cuba. They were now by the war between France and Spain, again forced to become exiles, and within three summer months of 1809, over five thousand persons, white, free mulattoes, and black slaves, came to New Orleans from Cuba. They continued to emigrate from Cuba, Guadeloupe and other French West Indies, until about ten thousand persons, two thousand of whom were free people of color, took refuge in New Orleans.

* * *

By 1788 the Louisiana province contained 1,701 free men and 21,465 slaves amidst the French and Spanish settlers. The Carmelite Convent played its part in these early days, as an educational centre. Here attended both white and free colored children; many of the latter class had wealthy parents who paid a high price for their tuition. Children of the wealthy were sent to Paris to complete their education. In fact, says an old Creole neighbor and friend of my grandmother, Mons. Victor, who came to New Orleans from Martinique in 1847, "Many of the women and children did not know whether they were Creoles or white, nor could the whites themselves tell who was white and who was Creole, so generally was the population mixed, while the city was largely French in manners and life."

The town of St. Martinsville on the Bayou Teche, was nicknamed "Le petit Paris," and here it was that King Louis Phillippe (when Duke of Orleans) was entertained.

"The streets, banquets, we should say, were bright with color, the nights filled with song and laughter. Through the scene the people of color add the spice of color in the life; they add the zest of romance." With the French spirit greatly predominating, from this mingling of races sprang the Creole, and in this environment, the Creole song.

Who are the Creoles? The word itself is used in Europe as well as in the French West Indies and in the South-West section of this country. "Creole" as used to denote race is a term that is continually being misunderstood and warmly argued. The word "Creole" is from the Spanish "Criollo" and the French verb "creer" to create—a created race.

Of the Spanish Creoles, Calderon in "Latin America" says, the three races, Iberian, Indian and African, united by blood, from the population of Spanish America, while Arthur R. Gray in "The New World" says, the European established in America becomes a Creole; his is a new race, the final product of secular unions. If all the races of the new world were finally to unite, the Creole would be the real American.

Joseph and Mary Come To Bethlehem

AT last we've reached the town where in a bygone year
Prince David saw the light,—that king without a peer.
"Take courage, Mary mine; beside yon climbing spire Nestles a little inn, 'tis there we shall retire."

The watchman in the tower
Cries, "Seven is now the hour."

"Ah! sir, within your house may we not shelter find—
Some little quiet nook? For heaven's sake be kind!"
"Your plea is all in vain; you two must further fare;
My house is filled with folk; seek lodgings elsewhere."

The watchman in the tower
Calls, "Seven is still the hour."

"We'll seek another place; see that house opposite,
All bright with light and cheer,—'tis there we'll sup and sit."
"Joseph, your arm! Dear God! I find myself so weak
I cannot travel more, or other lodgings seek."

The watchman in the tower
Warns, "Eight is now the hour."

"Ho! Host of the Three Crowns, tell me, you must have room, Some little hole for two. We'll not mind dust or gloom!"
"I take but noble folk who pay a handsome meed.
Begone you beggars! Go! I hate your lowly breed!"
"Ah! sir, upon my knees, for great Jehovah's sake,
I pray you scorn us not; we have so much at stake!"
"Away, poor carpenter, some other shelter find,
My house was never meant for people of your kind!"

The watchman in the tower
Sighs, "Nine is now the hour."

"Ah! Madame auburn-haired, for God's sake give to me
Some shelter, some retreat within your hostelry!"
"Why I've no bed myself; tonight all comfortless Upon a bed of straw, I'll shiver in distress!"
"Oh, Madame!" Mary begs in tears and on her knees,
"You realize my plight: compassion, if you please!"

Translated
by Jessie
Fauset

"Yes, Mother-soon-to-be, your plight is very clear;
Your time is imminent—it must not happen here."

The watchman in the tower
Moans, "Ten is now the hour."

"At least until I find some shelter, some retreat, You'll let her linger here, upon that vacant seat?"
"Of course she may, poor child. 'Tis plain she needs to rest.
Quick, try the White Horse Inn or else the Magpie's Nest."
"You chattering, foolish wife!" a shrill voice cries in scorn,
"You'll linger at the door till night turns into morn?"
"Hush, that's my husband! Go! We'll have to separate!
Farewell, farewell, good-folk; God's mercy be your fate!"

One wails within the tower—
"Eleven is the hour now."

Poor Joseph in despair and utterly unable
To find a lodging fit, espies a little stable.
Within this lowly home, as prophesied Isaiah,
The little Christ is born, the Lord, the world's Messiah.

The watchman in the tower
Chants, "Midnight is the hour."

Noël! Noël! Noël!

Chimes out each happy bell.
Bring frankincense and myrrh!
Play pipe and dulcimer!
Ring bells with silvery voice!
The Christ is born, rejoice!
The Christ, so long foretold
By prophets new and old,
The Christ for whom we've yearned,
To us at last hath turned.
Play pipe! Play dulcimer!
All things that ever were
The happy chorus swell.—

Noël! Noël! Noël!

—An old French Chanson rendered
by Yvette Guilbert.

AFRICANS, ASIATICS AND ANGLO-SAXONS

THE Anti-Slavery and Aborigines Protection Society presents the case of the expropriation of the Mashona and Matabele territory in Africa:

The cardinal fact of the land situation was that the ownership of the entire lands of Southern Rhodesia was declared by the Chartered Company to be vested in them as a commercial asset, that is to say, that the lands practically belonged not to the native inhabitants but to private persons in this country who happened to be shareholders in the company. This contention carried with it the logical sequence that the natives of these territories had (and have) lost all ownership rights to their lands—that no single Mashona or Matabele owned or owns, either by tribal or individual right, the ground on which his hut is erected, the gardens he tills, or what every student of Africa knows, or should know, is dearer and more sacred to him even than to the European, the burial grounds of his family. It cannot be too clearly understood that the expropriation of the land ownership rights of the 800,000 natives of Southern Rhodesia is absolute in degree, and applies to every native from the family of Lobengula to every private individual in the territory—not a vestige of native ownership remains.

Here is the much vaunted British justice:

The total costs incidental to the native case have been about £7,000, which sum the Anti-Slavery and Aborigines Protection Society advanced for the natives. The Chartered Company refuses, and the British Government, though it can do so, will not insist upon the application of the resolution of the Legislative Council to the costs of the native case. This attitude obviously implies that the Mashona and Matabele people are not to be deemed part of the "inhabitants and people" of Southern Rhodesia—except, of course, for purposes of taxation!

Japan has no notion of sitting quiet under American racial distinction. An Associate Press dispatch tells us:

The Japanese Government, as a result of yesterday's meeting of the Cabinet, will, in the first place, vigorously pursue the negotiations concerning American anti-Japanese legislation, and, in the second place, will push firmly the question of racial equality in the League of Nations conferences, according to the Hochi Shimbun today. These decisions will be considered further at today's meeting of the Diplomatic Advisory Council, the newspaper says.

A graduate of Columbia University, New York, M. Osako, who followed Representative Kodama, attributed the anti-Japanese sentiment in the United States to racial differences. He declared that the whites were oppressing the colored races, backed by the power and influence of civilization. Japan was the only country strongly opposing white oppression, M. Osako asserted, and therefore had incurred the hatred of the Americans.

In his address to the Provincial Governors yesterday, Premier Hara said the situation of the world never was more strained than at present. Hitherto, he declared, Japan's problems had been confined to the Orient, but international competition had arisen, resulting in a marked increase in Japan's responsibility to the world and the expansion of her national expenditure.

BLACK JEWS

DR. JACQUES FAITLOVITCH, of Geneva, tells of the existence of black Jews in Abyssinia. He writes in the American Jewish Year Book:

In Abyssinia, in the vast empire of the Negus, exist Jews called "Falashas." Their skin of a light black color and the regular and finely cut features which characterize them speak of a non-African race. Their name "Falasha," a surname given to them by the natives, signifying exiled immigrants, proves that they are strangers who came from abroad to establish themselves in Ethiopia. They called themselves Beta Israel ("The House of Israel"), and with great pride state that they are the offspring of the stock of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Certainly no historical documents exist in writing, but their oral traditions, faithfully transmitted from father to son, sustain their claim as Jews. They maintain even to this day, as they have maintained throughout the centuries in this remote corner of the Dark Continent, the assertion of descent from our ancestors, and this sincere claim, next to their religious hope, is their most cherished heirloom. When evils befall them, it constitutes their strength and their consolation. They always show themselves worthy sons of our people, and in the past they have many times demonstrated that they possess the characteristics of our race, the vivifying force of the existence of Israel. This quality distinguishes them from their compatriots, all of whom, Christians, Muslims and Pagans, bear witness to the relationship of the Falashas to the Jewish race and religion.

Among the Falashas there exist no differences of religion nor any distinction of class. All profess the same faith, practise the same customs, and live on a basis of equality. The priests and the Dabteras [learned men] follow trades, and work like everybody else to provide for their needs. Only in the matter of headgear are they distinguished from the others; they wear turbans of white cloth, while the other Falashas, like all Abyssinians, go bare-headed by day and by night, indoors as well as out of doors.

Their occupation, originally that of military mercenary service under the different sovereigns, and later trade on the banks of the Nile and on the littoral of the Red Sea, is mainly agriculture and manual labor. They are in their country almost the only people who are able to follow, with any skill, the trades which are practiced in Abyssinia, and thanks to their skill they are on good terms with their non-Jewish compatriots. Abyssinia needs the Falashas who furnish the articles indispensable for the maintenance of the country.

PUBLICITY AS USUAL

THE publicity methods of the Washington, D. C., Post with regard to Negroes speak for themselves:

SNATCHES GIRL'S PURSE
Unidentified Negro Takes $16.50 From Telephone Operator

Helen Barnes, 17 years old, living on Sligo Mill road, near Blair road northeast, reported to the police last night that she had a pocketbook containing $16.50 and some car tokens snatched by an unidentified Negro as she was crossing a lot near Blair road and Rittenhouse road on her way home.

Miss Barnes is telephone operator, and told the police last night that she has noticed a Negro loitering about several times. The case was investigated by policemen from the Tenth Precinct and Detectives Thompson and Embrey, of headquarters.

* * *

But the retraction carefully refrains from stating the truth until the very end of the paragraph so that he who runs may read:

Helen M. Barnes, 17 years old, who reported to the police of the Tenth Precinct last Saturday night that she had been attacked by a Negro and robbed of a purse containing $16.50, signed a statement at police headquarters yesterday to the effect that she had not been robbed of any money or attacked by a Negro.

THREE POEMS

CHARLES BERTRAM JOHNSON

I SHADOWS

WHEREVER turn I will or may,
They fall across my onward way;

But what I yield not heart to see,
I know can never master me.

II RACE DREAMS

THE chance here to be nobler men—
Filled with the conscious breath of God—

Whether free in the city's din,
Or delving wisely in the sod.

III SNOW

ALL day the clouds
Grow cold and fall,
And soft the white fleece shrouds
Field, hill and wall;
And now I know
Why comes the snow:
The bare black places lie
Too near the sky.

Men of the Month.

DR. E. M. BRAWLEY has retired from the pulpit at White Rock Baptist Church, Durham, N. C., after 8 years' service. During this period the debt on the church has been reduced from $20,000 to $7,000, all current expenses have been met and a parsonage has been purchased. The congregation presented Dr. Brawley with a silver loving cup.

Dr. Brawley was born in 1851 at Charleston, S. C. He was the first student in the school of theology at Howard University. In 1875 he was graduated from Bucknell University. Dr. Brawley has organized Baptist churches, Sunday schools and conventions throughout the South and is the author of a "Commentary on Mark", a textbook on Evangelism, a number of tracts and pamphlets, and editor of The Evangel, a monthly pamphlet. He was president of Selma University for 4 years and in 1908 founded Morris College at Sumter, S. C. The well-known Benjamin G. Brawley, the author and historian, is his son.

AT Trinidad, B. W. I., Emanuel Mzumbo Lazare has been appointed as the first Negro member of the Legislative Council by Lord Milner, to succeed Norman Lamont. The Hon. Mr. Lazare was born at New Town, Port of Spain, Trinidad, on December 24, 1864. In 1891 he married Virginia Noelize Sward, who recently died. Mr. Lazare was the first Negro to pass the examination of the Law Society, Inc., of England; in 1888 he succeeded in having the Governor, Sir William Robinson, declare a public holiday in celebration of the jubilee of Negro emancipation; as a Lieutenant, in 1897, he was one of the officers of the military contingent at the Diamond Jubilee celebration of Queen Victoria. He serves on the Ground Provisions Committee and is a member of the Agricultural Society of Trinidad and Tobago, an advisory member of the Trinidad Workingmen's Association and the only Negro member of the Board of Agriculture; sketches of his life with photographs have appeared in The Graphic, The Sketch, Black and White, and Army and Navy, all popular English papers.

The Grenada says of Mr. Lazare: "He stands up in his manhood as a full blooded Negro with no apology for his existence."

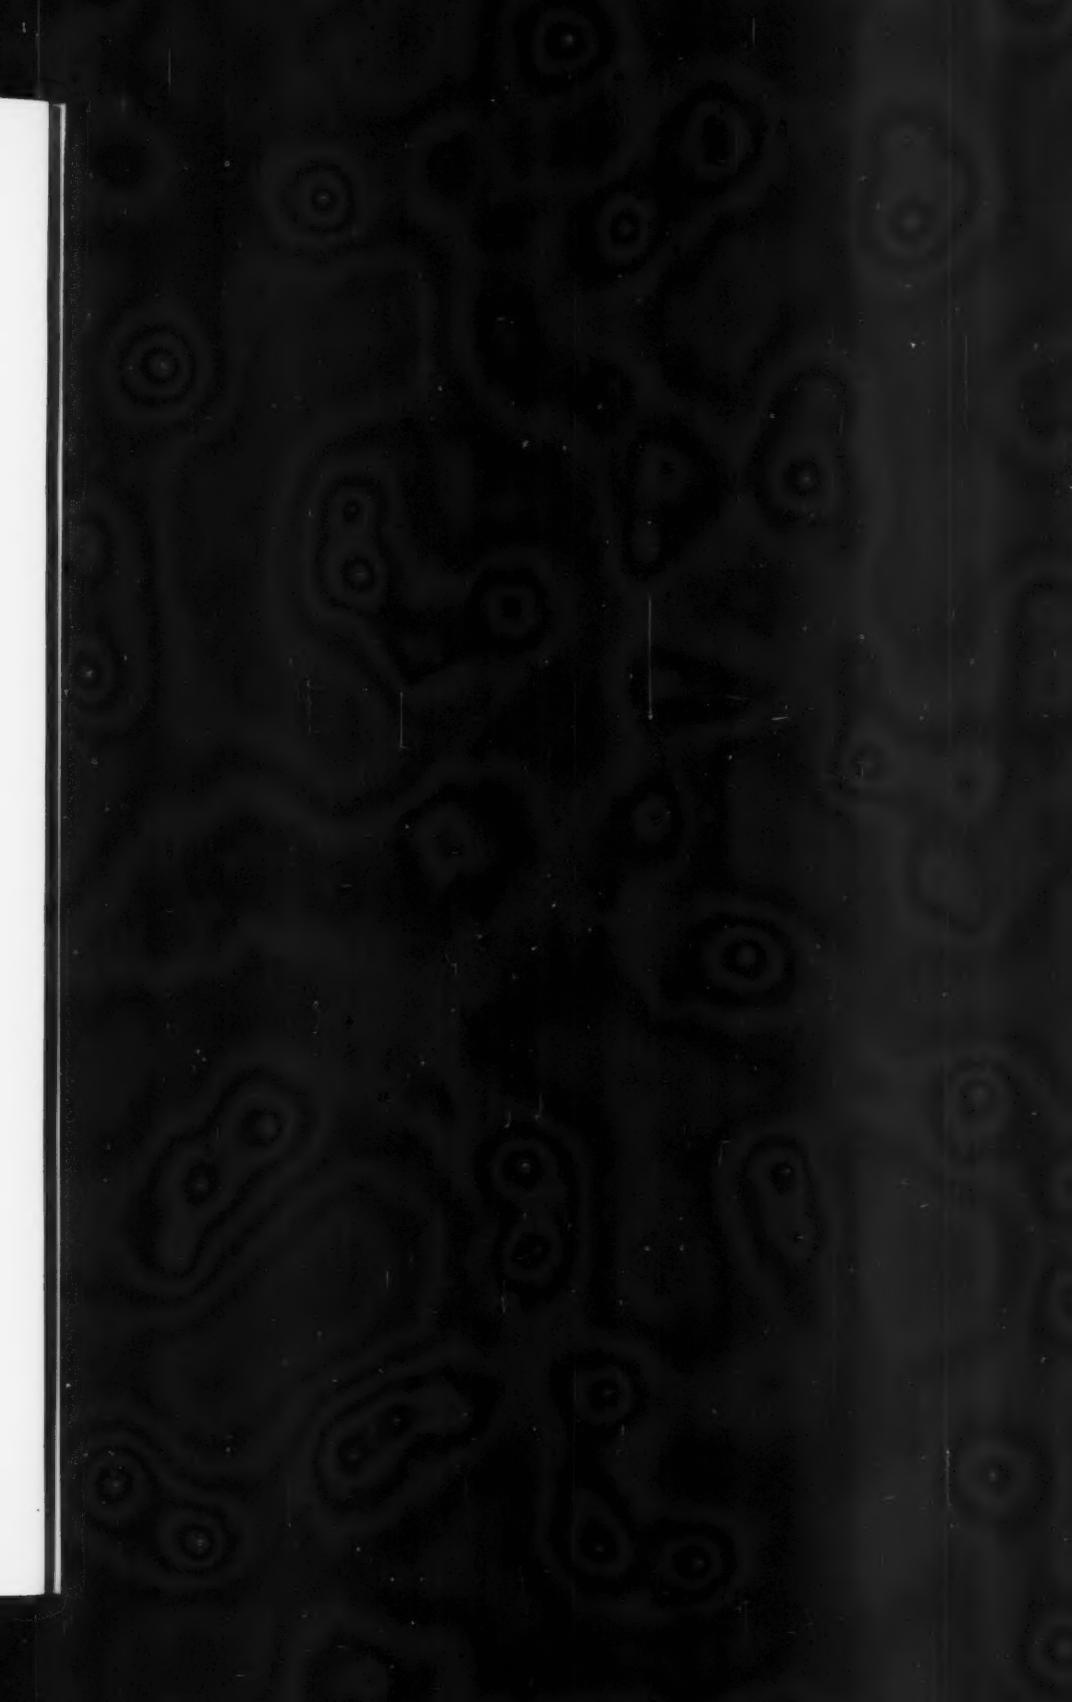

J. TURNER LAYTON was born in Washington, D. C., where he attended the public schools and Howard University. He is the son of the late Professor John T. Layton, from whom he received most of his musical training. For the popular song field Mr. Layton has written "Sweet Emma-Lina My Gal", "Sweet and Pretty", "Everybody's Crazy 'Bout the Doggone Blues" "Good-Bye Alexander", "Cute Little Wiggin' Dance", "After You're Gone"; he has written restricted songs for such vaudeville headliners as Bert Williams, Nora Bayes, Eddie Leonard, Stella Mayhew, Blanche Ring, Emma Carus, Al Jolson, Eddie Cantor, Eva Tanguay, Van and Schenk and Belle Baker.

Mr. Layton has as his collaborator Mr. Henry S. Creamer. Mr. Creamer was born in Richmond, Va., June 21, 1879, the son of the Rev. Henry Creamer. He attended the public and high schools of New York City. For many years he was an instructor and demonstrator of stage dancing, the first dramatic critic for the Amsterdam News, and a founder of the Clef Club. Among Mr. Creamer's works are the lyrics for "Too Much Isaacs", "Dandy Dixie Minstrels", the late Ernest Hogan's "Oysterman", S. H. Dudley's "Smart Set", Roger and Creamer's "Old Man's Boy", and the following songs: "Dear Old Moonlight" "Why Do You Wait for Tomorrow", "Dearest Memories", "I've Got the Finest Man", "Droop Dem Eyes", "Clef Club Chant", "Twenty Years", "I'm Wild About Moonshine" and "Show Me How."

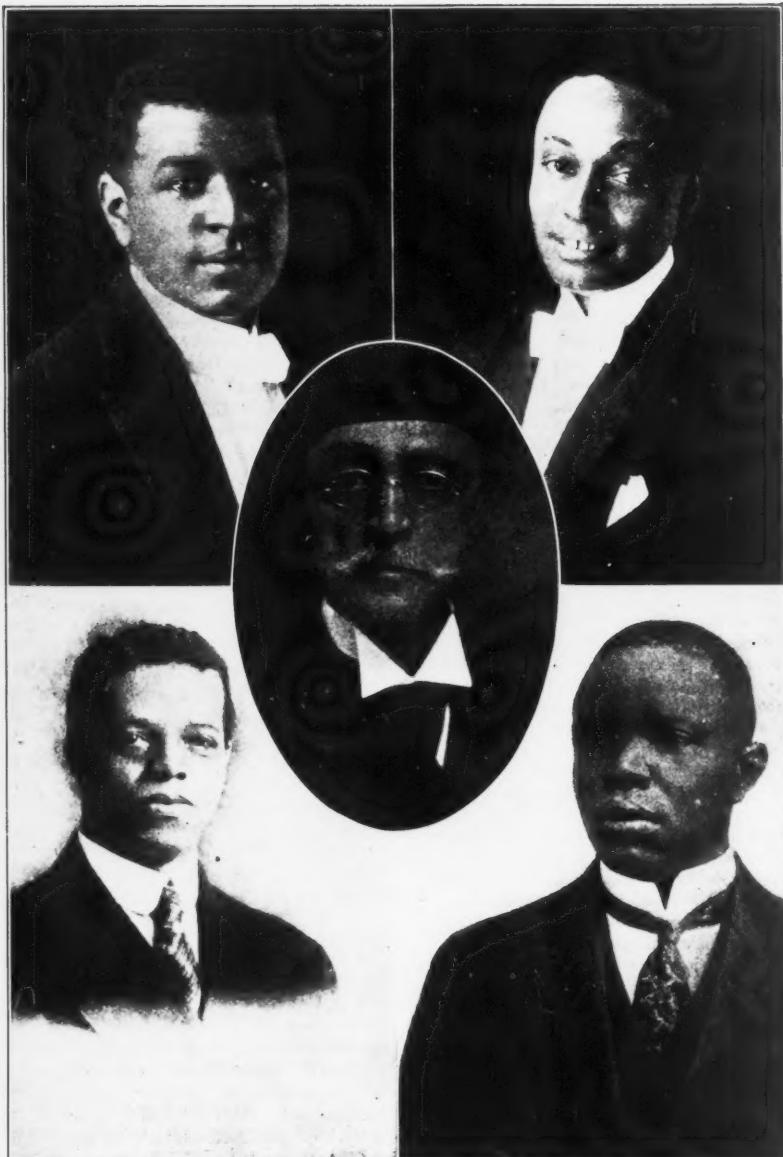

The complete musical score of Mr. and Mrs. Coburn's Broadway production, "Three Showers", which played in New York City at the Harris Theatre, was written by Messrs. Layton and Creamer, who also have succeeded in having over thirty compositions recorded with the Victor, Columbia and Emerson phonograph companies.

JOSHUA HENRY JONES, JR., the son of Bishop J. H. Jones of the A. M. E. Church, was born at Orangeburg, S. C., November 22, 1876. While in Central High School, at Columbus, he contributed verse to the Ohio Sunday State Journal and to the high school paper, of which he was a founder. In his senior year he won the prize for the class song for which there were 135 contestants. He attended Ohio State and Yale Universities and was graduated from Brown University in 1903. He secured a position with the Providence News as sports editor and after three years, was made head of the Labor Department of the paper and later founded the Union Advocate, a weekly publication devoted to union news. He has served as head of the sports department of the Worcester Evening Post; assistant city and news editor of the Lawrence Sun-American; city editor of the Boston Daily Advertiser with a staff of from 25 to 30 men; and a member of the editorial staff of the Boston Post.

Mr. Jones has published through the Stratford Company, Boston, a volume of poems, "The Heart of the World", a book of elegant style, noble thought and deep sentiment.

MUSIC AND ART

THE St. Louis Post Dispatch, a white daily, has reproduced in its rotogravure section a bust of the late Mme. C. J. Walker made by E. C. Gaither, a Negro sculptor.

¶ George W. Lattimore, colored proprietor of the American Southern Syncopated Orchestra and Singers, has leased Philharmonic Hall in London, England, for 2 years at a rental of $50,000 per year.

¶ Ground has been broken for the Douglass Theatre in Baltimore; it will be erected by the Quality Amusement Corporation at a cost of $400,000.

¶ J. W. F. Leman, Director of the Steel Pier Orchestra at Atlantic City, N. J., has consented to engage for the next season Edward Stello, a Negro soloist. This will be the first appearance of a colored soloist on the Steel Pier.

¶ The H. W. Gray Company has published Mr. Paul C. Bolin's "Communion Service in G". This work is dedicated to St. Philip's Protestant Episcopal Church of New York City, of which Mr. Bolin is organist and choirmaster.

¶ An active branch of the National Association of Negro Musicians is the Indianapolis Music Promoters' Club, of which Ella V. Thomas, pianist, is president and Adelaide Thornton, Supervisor of Music in the Colored Schools, is secretary. The club has instituted a monthly Community Program, a series of three artists' recitals and the maintenance of a piano quartette.

¶ Marie Ford of Los Angeles, Cal., has accepted the position of Director of Music at Lincoln Institute, Jefferson City, Mo.

¶ Mme. E. Azalia Hackley has given her second folk-song festival in Detroit. On the program were compositions by Burleigh, Cook, Dett, Johnson and Ditor. Among the artists were Cleota Collins, Bertha Hansbury and L. D. Collins. Ralph Holmes says in the Detroit Journal: "There is no reason why every season should not see a concert by the pick of the local colored singers that would pack the largest auditorium in the city with music lovers of all races and colors."

¶ The Dudley-Murray United Theatre Corporation has been organized at Washington, D. C., with an authorized capital of $500,000. It will erect The Douglass Theatre at 1333-41 You Street, N. W., on a lot 117 by 145 feet.

¶ A collection of six Creole folk-songs arranged by Maud Cuney Hare is to be published by Carl Fischer, New York. Philip Hale says in the New Music Review: "One awaits eagerly the book of Creole songs that Mrs. Maud Cuney Hare is editing. Mrs. Hare, by birth and early environment, is well qualified to edit and annotate these songs."

¶ West Virginia Collegiate Institute has presented Kemper Harrel in a violin recital; Mrs. Clarice J. Michaels was accompanist.

¶ Hazel Harrison, pianist, has begun her fall concert tour with a piano recital in Detroit, Mich.

¶ A Community Service Orchestra of 60 members has been organized in Chicago by Charles Elgar.

¶ At Orchestra Hall, Chicago, James A. Mundy has presented soloists and a chorus in concert. Mary E. Jones was the soprano soloist and Cleo Dickerson the pianist.

¶ Marie Peck Johnson, T. Theodore Taylor and George Johnson—known as The Johnson-Taylor-Johnson Trio, are touring the East and South in concert. Mrs. Johnson is the soprano soloist, Mr. Taylor the pianist and Mr. Johnson the tenor.

¶ The Williams Singers have appeared in a two-day concert in Louisville, Ky.

EDUCATION

IOTA CHAPTER, a graduate chapter of the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, has been organized in Atlantic City, N. J. George E. Brie is basileus.

NATIONAL URBAN LEAGUE

SIXTY-SEVEN organizations, representing 29 of the largest cities, were represented at the National Urban League's Annual Conference held in Newark, October 20-23. Urban League executives from 25 cities were in attendance. The reports indicate: Permanent general improvement in health among Negroes; that the industrial position of the Negro worker while serious on account of increased migration from Europe and slowing up in certain industries shows no cause for alarm as concerns the Negro; that racial co-operation which developed during the war is on the increase; that southern Negroes are steadily coming northward.

¶ The Industrial Department of the New Jersey Urban League placed last month a gang of colored workmen under their own foreman with the Standard Oil Company at Rahway, N. J.

¶ The New York Urban League provided convalescence and fresh air outings for 305 persons last summer. The pre-natal clinic opened in Harlem in July has advised in 876 cases of expectant mothers. The League was instrumental in securing to colored dining car employees a wage increase as allotted to other railroad employees by the U. S. Wage and Adjustment Board. New openings for employment were made with the United Chemical Company and the Schlesinger Toy Factory.

¶ The Cleveland organization's report for the fiscal year ending October 1, shows the placing of six personnel workers in plants and the employment of eight colored foremen who had been trained in the school for foremen inaugurated by William Connors, Executive Secretary. In co-operation with the Cuyahoga Farm Bureau and the Farm Department of the city, Negroes are being placed on farms as workers, tenants and owners. Surplus labor is being distributed in nearby towns. Four thousand workers were placed with 992 in skilled positions. Howard at the School for Social Workers, Boston, Mass.; and Phila A. McGillery at the Pennsylvania School of Social Service, Philadelphia.

FOREIGN

THE Conference of Africans from British dependencies has met and sent a deputation to London. Resolutions passed by the conference are: "That this conference views with great disfavor the propaganda of the Empire Resources Development Committee with respect to the British West African Colonies, and is strongly of the opinion that the natural resources of the British West African dependencies are not for the exploitation of concessionaries under State control." Other resolutions passed dealt with the palm kernels export duty, which the conference pledged itself to endeavor to repeal; with judicial reforms, particularly deplored the modifications in British West Africa of the right to trial by jury, and protesting against the denial of the right to representation by Counsel in the Provincial Courts; with the flogging of women, which the conference wholly condemned as a barbarous practice for any offence whatever.

¶ The Building Workers' International Union in East London, South Africa, has opposed the introduction of a rate of 1 shilling 3 pence for colored workers and 1 shilling 9 pence for white workers, and demanded a flat rate of 1 shilling 6 pence for all workers.

¶ Lord Sinha, Indian Under-Secretary for India, has resigned at London, England, and been succeeded by the white Earl of Lytton. Lord Sinha and other Indian leaders insisted upon the appointment of Secretary Montagne as Viceroy of India because of his firm stand in condemning the Amritsar massacre and other repressive measures in India; the appointment was refused.

¶ A law dated March 17, 1920, provides for the organization in Paris in 1925 of an Interallied Colonial Exposition and for the building of a permanent colonial museum.

PARENTS and TEACHERS

Is it a CHRISTMAS Gift to Your Children? Then why not a Year's Subscription to

THE BROWNIES' BOOK

A monthly magazine designed especially for our children which attempts to bring to them:

1. The best in pictures and stories of Negro life.
2. The life and deeds of famous men and women of the Negro race.
3. The current events of the world told in beautiful language which children can understand.

THE BROWNIES' BOOK has appeared monthly since the January, 1920, issue. Its circulation is still less than 5,000 copies per month. In order to keep the magazine at its present high standard—as we are determined to do—we must have at once 12,000 subscribers. Won't you help us now to reach that figure?

If each person reading this page will send us just one paid up yearly subscription to THE BROWNIES' BOOK—or two subscriptions if you prefer—the future of the magazine is secure.

SPECIAL OFFER: Five paid-up yearly subscriptions to the BROWNIES' BOOK sent in at one time will entitle the sender to a year's subscription free. This offer holds good until midnight of December 31, 1920.

"1920"

The Southern Aid Society of Va., Inc., has striven during 1920, as always heretofore, to render to its policyholders a superior service during sickness, accidents and the dark hour of death. As a result of its efforts to keep faith with the people, the society has done a larger and more satisfactory business during 1920 than ever before.

Therefore at this joyous season of the year we first give thanks to Him from whom cometh all good things; then to the good people who have so willingly and consistently entrusted to our care and keeping the sacred duty of protecting their firesides in the time of sickness, accidents and death; and last, but not least, to that band of ever faithful co-workers—our officers, superintendents, agents and clerks—for their loyal devotion to the interests of both the policyholders and the Society.

The success of 1920 inspires and prepares us for bigger and better service during 1921.

If you live in Virginia—you should have the superior protection provided only by the unmatched policy of the

THE WEEK OF NOVEMBER 29

 "Justice" is a big, powerful, virile drama of tolerance toward the individual, appealing to every lover of humanity.

 "Uncle Tom's Cabin" went far to free the Negro's body from bondage; "Justice" will go far to liberate the white man's mind from prejudice.

 "I think, my friends, you are guilty of a great wrong against God and humanity. This Negro question is still to be settled." These words are as true today as when spoken by John Brown—and this drama of "Justice" shows the way to solve this problem of the color line.
 ~~~~~

:-: Comments :-:

"Justice" is a great play. It is ten years ahead of its time.—Lee Shubert, Manager.

"Justice" is the most panoramic play I have heard. It seemed as if I saw the people as you read it. It is five years ahead of its time.—Henry Miller, Actor-Manager and Co-Star with Blanche Bates in "The Famous Mrs. Fair."

"Justice" is a great play. It should be played at once, but won't be in the condition our theatre is in today.—Emma Goldman, Author-Lecturer.

 The Corporation has arranged also to present Mr. Davenport in readings from "Justice" and other plays for Clubs and Literary Societies.

THE MOST ATTRACTIVE LOT OFFER EVER MADE!

Excellent Lots, Developed Under New Plan, with Fruit Trees Planted on them, in

Beautiful ORCHARDVILLE

FOR ONLY $56 ON VERY EASY TERMS

PEOPLE FROM ALL OVER THE COUNTRY ARE SECURING THESE LOTS AND THE DEMAND FOR THEM IS INCREASING BY LEAPS AND BOUNDS. If you want any you must ACT QUICKLY!

Orchardville is located in a high grade fruit growing region and is to be developed into a BEAUTIFUL FRUIT CITY. Each lot will have FIVE HIGH GRADE FRUIT TREES PLANTED ON IT, also a beautiful shade tree, which will be cultivated and taken care of by us for FOUR YEARS WITHOUT EXTRA COST TO YOU. When the fruit trees come into commercial bearing they should earn you EXCELLENT YEARLY RETURNS ON YOUR INVESTMENT WITHOUT ANY EFFORT ON YOUR PART.

The lots are sized 30 x 144 feet, and have plenty of room for a house, garden, chicken yard, shed, etc., besides the room taken up by the fruit trees.

EACH LOT IS GUARANTEED TO BE HIGH AND DRY UNDER A MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE, and the title to the property is absolutely clear.

The price of the lots is only $56, as stated above, and the terms are only $3.00 a month. Smaller terms when more than one lot is purchased. NO INTEREST.

We have a beautiful booklet that gives all the particulars of this offer, and that explains how to secure your lots. Send for one TODAY.

Simply write your name and address on the coupon attached below and mail it to us RIGHT AWAY. The number of lots is LIMITED and they are GOING FAST, which makes it a case of FIRST COME-FIRST SERVED.

RATIONAL LIVING

Editor: BENZION LIBER, M.D., D.P.H.

Health Conservation—Social Hygiene—Industrial Hygiene—Personal and Intimate Hygiene—Child Hygiene—Plain, Drugless Treatment of Disease—Birth Control—All Truths from all Medical Schools—Fighting Dishonesty in the Healing Professions—Answers to Subscribers' Questions—Art—Freedom, in the Bringing Up of Children—Vegetarianism—Fighting Superstition.

Rational Living is an independent illustrated monthly devoted to the teaching of rational methods of living, an educational guide for manual and mental workers. It is not sensational. It has in view the plain, ordinary people, and not the extra-ordinary athlete. It is scientific, but popular. It saves you money.

The December Issue of Rational Living Is Out

It contains, among many other articles: Dr. Marie Stoops, on Exercise and Birth Control; Influenza; Labor and Industrial Hygiene; Women in the Textile Industry; Food and the Child.

The January issue will contain a large number of interesting and educational articles. Here are but a few: Fighting Disease in Soviet Russia; Exercise Good and Bad; Water as a Remedy; Labor and Health; Stammering; the Breakfast; Pictures by Renoir and Van Gogh.

40 cents a copy. $4 a year in U. S. value. Corresponding rates for shorter periods. No free sample copies. Address 61 Hamilton Place, New York, N. Y.
